

Queen Anne 703 E. 4th Street

A sub-style of the late Victorian era, Queen Anne is a collection of elaborate detailing and eclectic materials. Steep cross-gabled roofs, towers, and vertical windows are all typical of a Queen Anne home. Inventive, multistory floor plans often include projecting wings, several porches and balconies, and multiple chimneys with decorative chimney pots or tops. This house features fish-scale shingles, paired windows, a six sided turret, an encircling veranda or porch which extends across the front of the home.

The home is historically known as the Ed and Lucy Brickheimer House and was built in 1898.
