

Thiel Theatre

In the opening of the new Thiel Theatre last week, Marshfield has one of the neatest and most modern playhouses in the state. Everything for the convenience of the public was installed at the outset, and the building is a credit to the city. It has a seating capacity of 600. Triangle pictures, some of the best produced at the present time are featured at this theatre. The place is ideally located and enhances the appearance of our "Great White Way." Marshfield has many beautiful and substantial buildings and with the completion of the Thiel theatre the number is increased. It is without doubt, that the pictures to be shown in the future will rank with the ones shown on the opening nights of this newly constructed amusement center.

THIEL THEATER IS OPEN

Marshfield has another new place of amusement. At the opening of the new Thiel theater Wednesday evening, the house was filled to overflowing at both performances. The theatre which was built by Mr. Thiel during the winter months and just opened to the public the past week is one of the most handsome places of recreation in this part of the state. All the conveniences necessary for a modern building of this sort are installed and it is needless to say that the public is appreciative of this fact.

Souvenirs were presented to every visitor at the performances on Wednesday. Henry Chilcote of Chicago, who spends some months each year with his son, E. H. Chilcote of this city, has the honor of securing the first admission ticket and being the first to pass through the doors at the matinee performance.
